Insecurity Insight has released a report examining how the conflict between Iran, Israel, Lebanon and the US has impacted emergency medical services across the Greater Middle East region.

Key findings

- The highest number of incidents affecting emergency medical services were recorded in Lebanon
- Nearly three quarters of incidents were attributed to Israeli forces
- Sequential strikes on emergency responders were documented in Iran, Iraq and Lebanon.
- Emergency responders in southern Lebanon reported delays and heightened risks during rescue operations.

[1] 61 incidents were recorded without specifying the location and no additional source could be identified to determine the location of the reported incident.

[2] 765 is based on the number of health workers killed where location and date has been identified. Other sources have reported 1,173 workers killed. Insecurity Insight carries out cross-checking of individual events and names and does not re-report aggregate figures. The work of collating a complete list of health workers killed based on information provided in different formats by different organisations is ongoing. This cross-checking process is complex to avoid double counting the same individuals in cases when sources report different victim information about the same individual. The lack of a consistent standard in transcribing Arab names into Latin script based languages complicates the matching process. The total number of health workers killed is believed to be higher than the current verified number and we continue to backdate information.
